

ALLIES HURL NAZIS OVER MAAS

The British 2nd Army ^{has driven} is ~~not in~~ pursuit of the Germans ^{from} ^{S.W.} ~~in~~ south Holland. The enemy ^{now} ~~has~~ ^{lost his} ~~nothing but~~ a toehold on the Scheldt estuary and is pulling out of the country
west of the River Maas.

Mine-sweeping tanks did good work in the assault of Hertogenbosch, whose capture hastened the German decision to retreat on the ~~enemy~~ right flank. Many roadside cottages, used as Nazi machinegun posts, were left blazing as we forced the enemy out. Tommies rescued people from shelters on which burning debris had fallen;
~~all in the day's work of pursuing the foe.~~

~~Crossed the Maas, the enemy turned strong points into ashes.~~

(2nd BV) The path was now clear to Schindel, a small town only five miles from Hertogenbosch. In such fighting, yard by yard, from house to house, ~~are the allies pushing~~
~~the enemy out of south east Holland.~~

the Allies won the battle to use Antwerp as a port.