

WEDDING.

This little lady stole the picture when we went along to the Royal Military Chapel at Wellington Barracks. The bride, Miss Virginia Stuart Reynolds, looked more charming and radiant even than most brides and the bridegroom was a distinguished officer in the ~~xxx~~ Grenadier Guards. Tall guardsmen formed a guard of honour as Mr Gerald Potter led his bride from the church but I still think the little bridesmaid stole the picture.

BARCELONA.

Returning in state to Barcelona ~~xxx~~ ----- Senor Companys was President of Catalonia but the rest of Spain didn't like him very much and they put him in prison. Now, with the new Spanish Government, the declaration of the amnesty and the release of political prisoners the gallant President has returned amid rejoicing. Flowers bedecked his triumphant path, which must seem very nice to him because a Spanish prison is no flower shop.

ARSENAL .

Lord Lonsdale went to King's Cross to perform an unveiling ceremony. The Arsenal football team and Mr George Allison were also there because the occasion was the naming of ^{a new} ~~the~~ L.N.E.R. engine, and the name was Arsenal. Lord Lonsdale, active as ever, climbed up into the engine cab to have a chat with the driver, but Mr Allison stayed behind to look after the ball.
