

U.S. ARMY DAY.

2
The Army's in the spotlight --- Uncle Sam's Army. For it's Army Day, and in Washington the doughboys paraded through the streets in a grand review. President Roosevelt is Commander - in - Chief --- he doesn't wear a uniform, but his smile is better than a brass hat. Horses, men, tanks and guns --- all the ~~trappings~~ trappings of the modern military machine. The United States Army ~~is 185,000 strong and they~~ can get all the recruits ~~they~~ want, thanks to those stirring tunes.

ANGLO-ITALIAN PACT.

1
After many months of mistrust and misunderstanding between Great Britain and Italy, friendship has been renewed. The pact was signed in the Palazzo Chigi --- Italy's Foreign Office in Rome. Count Ciano, Mussolini's son-in-law, signed for Italy. For Britain, the signature was that of Lord Perth, our Ambassador to Rome. And to complete this agreement of peace, ~~particularly as it affects the Mediterranean and Africa,~~ there was a third signature from the Egyptian Minister, Mustafa el Fadek Bey. The news of the signing of the Anglo-Italian Pact was specially welcomed in France. It was hailed as a major contribution towards the settlement of European problems. France once again will fall into step with Great Britain in the cause of world peace.
