NAPOLEON STATUE.

Corsica --- 169 years ago Napoleon Bonaparte was born, and here the French Minister of Marine, himself a Corsican, unveiled a statue to the little ~~Corsican~~ ^{Capital}. Strange as it may seem, this is the first time in history that the French Republic has paid homage to Napoleon, although of course it's been done several times in Hollywood.

MOSLEM PROCESSION.

London --- Hundreds of Indian Moslems paraded through the Streets in a demonstration march to the home of H.G.Wells. It was a protest against the famous writer's short history of the world. Moslems say that the book insults the memory of Mohammed and the Koran.

YACHTING.

Massachussetts --- the final run of the Eastern Yacht Club's three-day international regatta. It's a race --- but it's also a lovely fantasy of summer.

WOODERSON.

Motspur Park --- Sidney Wooderson, holder of the world's one-mile record, went out for the half-mile record too. And the wonderful British Athlete brought it off --- he clipped four-tenths of a second off the record held by the American E. Robinson. In one minute forty-nine seconds Wooderson covered half a mile --- a wonderful performance.
