

NEW YORK.

570

The wonderful impression of friendliness made by the King and Queen in Washington had preceded them to New York. And although the actual landing ceremony was unexpectedly simple for Manhattan, it was the slightly shy official welcome of the greatest city in the new world, for welcome visitors from the greatest of the old. ~~Their Majesties were met by Mayor~~
~~La Guardia --- Mayor of New York.~~

These pictures were flown across the Atlantic and established a new record in the time between an event in New York and its presentation in Britain --- but a fuller account will appear in later editions of Gaumont British News. ~~Their Majesties were met by Mayor La Guardia~~
The King and Queen drove through New York; ~~and~~ in front of them in the car were Mayor La Guardia and New York's Governor Lehmann.

And so they came to the World's Fair. Here again their simplicity and charm conquered the American hearts. They have left behind them a better appreciation of the ~~stark~~ problems of the British Empire. They have created an understanding of far greater value than any modern pact.
