KENNARD AND TURKISH MISSION?

One of the first calls made ~~in~~ by Sir Howard Kennard on his return to London was at the Foreign Office --- Sir Howard had just returned from Warsaw where he was British Ambassador. Other distinguished visitors arriving on the same day were the Turkish Military Mission, under the leadership of General Orbay. They were welcomed at the station by General Birdwood and the Turkish Ambassador. The arrival of Turkey's War Office representatives has set the seal on the failure of Von Ribbentrop's second visit to Moscow. ~~It was not only the ambitious intention of the Nazi~~ It was hoped Minister to upset the understanding between Britain and Turkey; but the arrival of this military mission in London may be counted as one more headache for Hitler.
