

SALMON AND KIDS TROUT FISHING.

761

At Connahs Quay in North Wales a 75 year old fisherman is repairing his nets before putting out for a spell of salmon netting-- And his daughter of 14 helps her Dad daily in all weathers. Out they go ^{to see what luck father has in store for them} and soon have the luck to net ~~a real beauty-- an 18 pounder.~~ It's no easy job to ~~take~~ one of these slippery customers. ~~While Father stuns, his small daughter collects.~~ Every boat must pay £7-10- per season for their permit to fish and is usually a family affair-- handed down from father to son or daughter. The fish ~~will~~ is sold to the merchants at about half the price ~~or a little more than is sold~~ in the shops.

4 And over in America there's no doubt that spring has arrived-- These young ~~fishers~~ followers of Isaac Walton creep up a Washington trout stream for the first catch of the season. These rainbow fellows are frisky and hungry too-- Everybody hooks a fish, yes, everybody. ~~But~~ This four year old boy has the thrill of his young life as he battles with his first trout--

How can he land him? That's the question. ~~xxxxxxx~~ But he keeps his head and does it successfully, too-- what a whopper! Well done, Tommy.
