

A crowd of more than 60,000 at Wembley to see the Soccer International between England and Scotland: and very few peacetime matches have provided a more exciting game. The teams came out together, England in white shirts; ~~and~~ before the match they shook hands with the Prime Minister, Scotland first.

Scotland won the toss: ~~and~~ so began a game in which the goalkeepers of both sides shone with bright ~~destruction~~. destruction Scotland attacked, but Marks of the Arsenal was not to be caught out of place.

Now comes England's first goal: Matthews on the wing beat his man and centred the ball to Welsh who banged it in hard.

Now a repeat performance: the ball comes in from the wing to Hagan and Hagan gets England's second goal. That was the final score --- England 2 --- Scotland nil.

Now came a bombardment on the English goal, but Marks put up what you might call stubborn resistance. Now for a crack at Scotland's goal --- it's safe --- no, coming again --- a goal --- no, offside!
