~~HERE HE IS~~ on his wedding day, 25 years ago. His bride was lovely Anni ~~on~~ Ondra, a famous German film star. By 1933, Max had already won, and lost, the world heavyweight crown to Jack Sharkey. The next year, Schmeling defended his German title against Walter Neusel winning in the ninth round. Boxing fans will remember Neusel, too... for those three victories in Britain over gallant Welshman Jack Petersen. In 1936, Max went back to America (and trained on Miami Beach) to fight an up-and-coming coloured hope, Joe Louis. Schmeling won again...one of the few men to beat the famous "Brown Bomber". And here's why Schmeling never became really popular in the fight game. The Nazis used his triumphs for their "master-race" propaganda.. To-day, <sup>ANNI</sup> ~~she~~ and <sup>MAX</sup> ~~he~~ share their memories of the bright lights and the ~~sporting headlines and the only fur that flies is on that~~ ~~successful mink farm near Hamburg.~~ sporting headlines. And the only fur that flies are the pelts - going to market from that successful mink farm, near Hamburg.
