DO YOU KNOW

A Pathe News enthusiast asks us if we know what happens to servicemen who find it hard to resettle in civilian life. We didn't know. But here, at Kneller Hall, Twickenham, we're finding out with a camera. There are never less than 250 men at Kneller Hall. Some officers, some rankers, some fit, some disabled; most of them are ex-war prisoners and they're all facing up to the tough job of getting down to ordinary hum-drum work in civvy street. They live as they like and do whatever work they choose. It's an experiment, but it gets results.

And that's Kneller Hall, the army's leading resettlement centre. For us, it's a question answered. Anybody else got a "Do you know" idea?
