UNDER THE STAGE ONE FASHION SHOW

Paris rings the changes. Instead of glamorous mannequins and bored business-men, it's the kids' turn to show off frilly feminine styles for the under-tens. All unknowingly, the nursery-age models parody all the airs and graces of their elders. After all, a woman's a woman - seven or seventy.

Here's one for the boys, and you've got to face it - there's something about a sailor, whatever his age-group.

Big success of the afternoon is this little girl. All they tell us is that her name's "Fanny." And if you don't think she's the prettiest thing outside an Academy portrait - there's one person who does. A little girl called Fanny ... ..
