

RANGERS DO IT AGAIN!

Clyde kick off and Scotland's 64th Cup Final is under way. Despite the rain, 120,000 fans pack Hampden Park to see dark-shirted Glasgow Rangers (with Willie Waddell, No. 7, outstanding) run rings round a cup-nervous Clyde defence.

It's that Waddell again - a centre to Williamson, but the Rangers man is brought down. It's a penalty!

Scotland skipper George Young nets from the spot!

One up, the Rangers now turn on the heat. The ball bobs around dangerously in the Clyde goalmouth, but somehow Goalie Gullan gets it clear.

The Ibrox boys are there again! Waddell has the ball - a centre to Williamson and yes! it's a beautiful goal!

After the turn-around, Clyde come into their own. A Davies pass and Galletly heads it home!

Rangers are beginning to slacken - when suddenly Clyde are dealt another blow. There's some pushing near the danger spot and the referee awards Rangers another penalty. George Young makes no mistake.

And there is still more to come! Jimmy Duncanson completes the Rangers quartet.

And so, Scotland's Cup goes back to Ibrox for the eleventh time.
