

49/51THE KAISER'S GRAND-DAUGHTER WEDS G. I.

Stately Hohenzollern Castle - in the French zone of Germany - regains its faded glory for one day. The 80-roomed fortress - once home of the German Kaiser and now homes his son, ex-Crown Prince Wilhelm, World War One's "Little Willie." For the silver-haired Prussian Prince and his wife Wilhelmina, it's a great day. An American, ex-Captain Clyde Harris from Texas - is to marry Princess Cecillie - Little Willie's youngest daughter and a great-great-grand-daughter of Queen Victoria.

In the Castle Chapel, a Princess of Prussia weds an architect of Amarillo. Wearing a diamond tiara - last symbol of her Imperial ancestry, the Kaiser's grand-daughter becomes Mrs. Clyde Harris of Texas. The couple met at the end of the war and, after the Captain went home to be demobilized, there began a two-year courtship by airmail. Mr. and Mrs. Harris will settle in Texas, for, as the Princess says, Amarillo is such a lovely name.
