

POLICE HONOUR BRAVEST MAN

To Thomas Temple goes the Binney Medal. In memory of Captain Binney, killed trying to stop escaping thieves it's given for the bravest deed in helping the police. Sir Harold Scott, the Commissioner, reads the citation. Temple helped in trying to capture two burglars, one of whom shot a policeman in the throat. Though unarmed, he gave chase. Now, from the hands of the Lord Lieutenant of London, Lord Alenbrooke, Thomas Temple receives the medal. Just an ordinary citizen, he dared greatly, that law and order might prevail.
