

NEEDLE IN A HAYSTACK

London takes on the impossible as a big lunch-time crowd prepares to look for a needle in a haystack. And there they go! It's part of national Sewing Week to encourage home sewing.

There seems to be quite a number of men in the hunt, too. The prize - if you find the needle! - is a sewing machine. To discourage spivvery, the needle is non-magnetic!

The stack is looking pretty sick now. They've been at it twenty minutes. Hullo, somebody's got something - yes, hay fever!

Nurse Rhoda Selby of Barts has found it! Ods Bodkin! What a whepper! Now, if you have an operation at St. Bartholemew's Nurse Selby can offer you the choice of hand sewn or machine-finished!
