

U.S. MARINES "MIGHTY MITE"

Meet the "Mighty Mite," America's latest development of the wartime jeep. But anything the jeep can do, this can do better. Whether it tackles rough country or deep mud, it takes it all in its stride.

Running on only three wheels, the "Mighty Mite" can manoeuvre on a sixpence. Even over six inch concrete blocks, it can touch fifty-miles-an-hour.

Picked up by a naval helicopter, the "Mighty Mite" can go into combat at the front to serve as a gun mounting.

From the "Mighty Mite" to the "Mighty Mouse," the new deadly rocket used in aerial combat. Sabre Jets can launch twenty-four "Mighty Mouse" rockets at electronically-located targets. One hit can knock the biggest bomber out of the sky. Here's what happens when a "Mighty Mouse" strikes home.

On the ground, obsolete planes are blasted by the "Mighty Mouse" which is taking a heavy toll of Red MiGs in the skies over Korea.
