Queen Mother Elizabeth of Great Britain arrives in New York aboard the Queen Elizabeth for a twenty four day tour of the United States and Canada.

As the ship stands into her pier, the Queen Mother joins the pilot on the starboard wing of the bridge, providing an unscheduled shot for the photographers.

In the ship's Verandah Grill, the Queen Mother is welcomed by John Simmons, our Chief of Protocol, and Amb. Patterson of the Mayor's Committee. She replies. Following her brief remarks, she is presented with a number of Commonwealth consular officials and their wives and several others.

Sound: Queen Mother's talk in Verandah Grill.

**> Silent: Approaching the ship (through some overcast) the Queen Mother on the wing of the bridge, shots in the Verandah Grill.

The Queen Mother Elizabeth arrived in New York this evening aboard the liner Queen Elizabeth. The liner docked twelve hours late due to heavy seas enroute. As the liner docked at Pier 90, North River the Queen Mother observed the procedures from the flying bridge of the liner. An hour and a half later she entered the Verandah Grill of the diner to meet a barrage of photographers and reporters plus the diplomatic corps of the commonwealth countries and officials of the City of New York. After addressing her remarks into the microphones she stepped back to receive the diplomatic and city officials. She then proceeded to the gangway at the top of which she said her goodbyes to the Captain of the ship. She then stepped down the gangway to put her feet on United States soil.

WE were not able to get shots of the Queen Mother at the foot of the gangway. This was due to restrictions placed on everyone in the Verandah Grill, covering the activities there. No one was allowed to leave the room until after the Queen Mother left the ship.
