CUBANS DEMAND MORE EXECUTIONS.

In front of the Presidential Palace in Havana, nearly a million people, which is just about the whole population of this capital city, gathered at the bidding of their new leader Fidel Castro. The summary courts-martial and executions of Batista followers have brought criticisms from abroad, especially America. Castro wanted to know how his countrymen felt on the subject and the hysterical reception shows that Cubans would support just about anything he did.

Dr. Castro, a 32-year-old lawyer, has recently banned the Roman Holiday type trials at the local Sports Stadium. He certainly displays great eloquence and a powerful personality.

It looks as if the chances of the ex-President's followers are not worth a cupful of burnt sugar. Despite outside criticism of Castro's methods, trials and executions will continue.
