

LOVE ME, LOVE MY SWAN.

Odd Man Out, among Moscow Park swans is Borika. His greatest friend is old Pavel Granov, the Park Keeper, who takes him to the water every day for his morning swim. There's a feathered tragedy behind this strange friendship. Borika's mate died, and the poor swan would neither eat or drink. It pined away and would have died but for Pavel's care. The old man made the bird take food, in fact fed it himself, and very soon Borika was back in the swim and enjoying life as he should. And he can't get back to his benefactor too quickly, when Pavel comes to the pond after the swan's morning dip. Now, everybody visiting the park goes to see Borika and Pavel, the two inseparables.
