PATHE GAZETTE SPECIAL..... AIR DRAMA OFF THE COAST.

A British Naval Patrol, making a grand spectacle as it steams through the glittering summer sea off the South East Coast.

An onlooker would have little thought for what may lie hidden above the silver clouds. A peaceful scene, soon to be shattered by the roar of planes, bent on death and destruction.

The God of War is abroad. Nazi Bombers dive to attack our Patrol.

We show with pride these epic pictures of an actual ~~hitting~~ attack. Zooming from out of the clouds, Hitler's War Planes aim their cargoes of death at our ships, sending up vast columns of water near their targets. As you watch these stirring scenes, bear in mind that the cameraman stood his ground through terribly dangerous conditions, risking his life to (look, look, it's a hit) bring to the screen dramatic evidence of our Defence's ability to drive Hitler's scourge from our shores. No Hollywood fake-pictures these, just plain, stark reality, Look, the Nazi Pilot's baled out.

Well, that takes care of him. And here's another coming to join him, a total bag of eleven hit-and-run planes down in one day. With smoke streaming from it, the Nazi comes down in a glide....a glide to destruction.

Hitler wants peace? Here's our answer.
