

NEW U.S.TANKS.

Again across more than three thousand miles of Atlantic ocean, American tank factories are working at full pressure, Now, all welded types coming off the assembly lines in an all-out effort to keep pace with the demands of the battling battalions in Russia, +China, the Middle East and the Pacific. Before they make the sea crossing in Convoy to the corners of the Globe, they receive their baptism of fire on the testing range under realistic conditions. The guns they carry can fire in any direction. The lessons taught in the battlefields have influenced the design of these formidable weapons.

They're using live ammunition now to show how the tanks can smother their targets with fire and then over-run them.

Wars hungry appetite for weapons is almost insatiable. These new tanks are being made ready for the great ordeal.
