

OUR TURKISH VISITORS.

Sir Frederick Handley Page (in the centre) is host to the Turkish National Newspaper Editors during a tour of one of our big aircraft factories. The eminent journalists who are on a visit to this country, will see much to impress them. Every facility is being afforded our guests to study Britain at war.

At Canterbury, not only the Cathedral, but much other grim evidence of the Nazi "Baedeker" raid is shown to them. The face of Britain can tell more than words.

And the White Cliffs of Dover. Here in Britain's front line town our Turkish visitors see how its people carry on, despite the shells hurled at them from twenty miles away.
