ADMIRAL HAREWOOD VISITS BENGHAZI.

It is good to be able to give some publicity to the Royal Navy in its prodigious work in the Middle East. Benghazi is the setting for this camera tour with Admiral Harewood, Commander-in-Chief Mediterranean Station as he travels around the much battered harbour. He is there to study the general lay-out of the Port and work out his own ideas for further effective help for the 8th Army.

Far too little has been said of the Navy's mammoth task in the final conquest of Libya. The Silent Service has a right to do a bit of shouting.

The Admiral's launch has almost to pick its way through the graveyard of sunken ships. There's a lot of clearing up to be done, but the Navy has a way of getting things done.

Admiral Harewood's inspection seems to indicate that a lot more active history awaits Benghazi before the Axis puts up the "Bowled Out" sign.
