

TITLE.:- MOTOR CYCLE RACING.

Picture.:- The sands were in very wet condition when the Competitors lined up.

At the starting signal, off they dash with twenty miles of sloppy sand to cover.

The turns gave the riders something to think about but fortunately all negotiated them without mishap.

The spectators rather expected - I won't say hoped - to see one or two exciting spills just here. As a matter of fact, as you can see, a great crowd gathered at this turn.

Here comes the winner, Guthrie of Hawick, now Scottish Lightweight Champion.

TITLE.:- A GIANT TROLLY.

Picture.:- This aptly named "crocodile" trolly was constructed to cope with transportation of heavy transformers and like loads.

Notice our Cameraman sitting on top of the truck taking pictures of the crocodile with its great freight of sixty-three tons - a forty thousand horse power transformer

This is what he saw from his precarious perch.

Now we see this great vehicle with its very heavy load, on its way to Yorkshire.

Heigho ! that was a weighty discourse, wasn't it ?

TITLE.:- DID YOU KNOW ?-

Picture.:- No, dear people, this isn't a "catch" -

This "king" was not a Mister King, or a "King" of the Costers but a real regal sovereign; for in the churchyard of St. Annes in Wardour Street; was laid to rest Theodore, King of Corsica who died in London in seventeen-fifty-six after having registered his Kingdom as an asset for the benefit of his creditors, to whom he owed only four hundred pounds !

I don't know if King Theodore's creditors ever got their four hundred, for history doesn't say.

I wonder if there are any spare Kingdoms about now ? I'd love to pawn one for the benefit of - well, my landlord is making himself such a nuisance just now !
