TITLE:- HELP FROM THE AIR.

Picture:- Somebody thought of dropping men and machine --

--guns from the air, so that an enemy could be demoralized by being attacked from behind their own lines.

Heavily wrapped and packed, the guns are loaded in the planes --

--which follow the troop-carriers into--

--the air. The idea is to drop the -- --machine guns near the crews who have been previously landed by --

--parachute. We're aboard a troop-plane now, and the men are --

--going off ! Ready ? Go ! That's --

-- ONE - TWO - THREE --

--FOUR - FIVE SIX - The Sergeant brings up the rear as the last --

--of the jumpers !

Gently they sail to earth. And now their weapons have to be got to them !

The gun-carrying planes manoeuvre round to the landing-place of the parachutists.

When they are near enough to the spot,--

--the pilots release the padded --

--machine guns ! Down they go, settling quite close to the waiting men.

Another one goes, with the parachute opening as easily as if it carried a human being. Down - down - down - the big umbrella finally laying its burden gently within reach of the eager gunners.

In a few seconds they are set up, --

--and in action - supposedly peppering the --

--enemy through the back-door, as it were !
