Picture. :-The 2nd Battalion of the East Yorkshires stationed at Catterick have the honour of being inspected by their Royal Colonel-in-Chief, the Duke of York. His Royal Highness's visit is coincident--

--with the commencement of work on the camp extension.
Another two-hundred and fifty--

--thousand pounds are to be expended on its enlargement, bringing the--

--cost of the establishment up to nearly two million pounds. The Duke takes the-- --salute as the Regiment marches past in-- --column, and after reforming line the ceremony of the Royal salute follows.

The review ends by His Royal Highness consenting to be photographed--

--with the officers of his Regiment; a copy of which-- --will later have a prominent place on the walls of the Mess, where the--

--Duke is to lunch now that the ordeal by camera is over. A proud day for the Yorkshires !
