

AS IN DAYS GONE BY - - Team representing the year 1833 plays 1933 team in celebration of Twickenham Cricket Club's centenary.

-Middlesex-

Picture.:-

A hundred years ago, before the days of the 'leg theory', when cricket was a highly genteel game, it was played by gentlemen in 'pot' hats,--

--and tail coats. Doting squire's daughters and village maidens wore hoops and how-do-you do's.

To celebrate its centenary Twickenham Cricket--
--Club pits 1933 against 1833.

The bewhiskered lads of the old village bat, while Kipling's--

--flannelled fools" bowl at them.

'Pot' hat swipes and runs. Grinoline maidens nearly faint with delight. In fact quite, if there's an available male handy.

Still those old bucks knew--

--how to play the game. Instead of running themselves, they employed--

--someone to trot up and down the pitch for them.

All Twickenham has turned out to see this unique match. Those with conservative leanings hank--

--the good old times, when men were men, by gad !
Two things--

--however have changed but little. The Cup, that cheers, and the way--

--of a man with a maid.