

Arriving in the busy Netherlands port of Rotterdam, were two giraffes brought from East Africa to join the Rotterdam Zoo. Owing to their peculiar markings, they are known as net-giraffes. Our News in a Flash Reporter in Holland asked them how they liked being in the Low Country, but they didn't answer because they thought he was trying to be funny. From their height, any country looks low.

Also in the news from Rotterdam is the "Coupe Des Nations" in the International horse show. Many nations were competing, and the audience included Prince Bernhard and the young Netherlands Princesses. Here in slow motion is an entry from ~~France~~ Miss Whitehead and her horse "Scorchin". ~~The Dutch were disappointed she didn't also bring hunting, shooting and fishing.~~ A competitor from Germany was Herr Winkler, riding Alpenjäger.

This is Major Dallas, on Marmion ~~from~~ from the British Isles. <sup>3</sup> The winners were the Irish team --- who came home to victory amid the applause of the royal and other spectators.

Deletions only apply to Irish.
