

Thousands of spectators packed into the Dynamo Stadium in Moscow, to watch the international athletics meeting between Britain and Russia; --- and one of the British victories was in the 110-metres hurdles.

The winner was Jack Parker --- with Stolyarov second.

Slow motion shows Thelma Hopkins of Britain attacking the ~~waxid~~ Women's High Jump World Record.

She failed to beat it --- but she registered another British victory.

Now --- ~~the~~ the Three Thousand Metres Steeplechase.

Now John Disley, going out on his own --- followed by team-mate Chris Brasher.

Disley kept up his cracking pace to win --- and Brasher followed him home in second place.

Five thousand metres. No. 3 is Britain's ace at the distance, Chris Chataway; but by this time Russia had established a commanding lead on the day.

Chataway was running comfortably at his own pace in the early ^{PART} part of the race; then he came up, to lie a dangerous second.

And now watch how the famous Chataway finishing sprint, takes him past his Russian challenger --- to win.
