

England had declared at two hundred and seventeen for eight wickets and Australia had lost two for nineteen when Burge and Harvey opened the fourth day's play at Trent Bridge.

Burge was dismissed for seven --- but Harvey stemmed the tide with a fighting innings of sixty-four.

But here ^{was} a shock for Australia --- when Laker got Keith Miller lbw.

England now had their tails right up --- and their fielding was the best for many a day.

Now Lock to Harvey --- and another lbw put a finish to a fine ~~innings~~ innings.

Johnson and his men really had their backs to the wall --- and in a desperate situation Lindwall took a mighty swipe at Laker --- and he was well caught by Trevor Bailey. But they saved the follow-on.

In a grand opening to the second innings for England --- here's Cowdrey's fifty. He scored 81.

And this was Richardson's fifty --- out of his total of 73.

England declared again, leaving the Australians to get ~~two~~ hundred and fifty eight to win; --- but ~~after two and a half hours~~ ~~batting~~, the match was drawn.
